The Judges have completed the DECEMBER 2018 civil jury term. Three civil cases reached verdict and the summary is as follows:

STACEY BAYLOR v. ROSHEEMA THOMAS (2013 CV 10561)
Trial dates: December 10-12, 2018

Trial Summary: A shooting occurred in December 2011 at "Queenie's Café." The Plaintiff was the victim of the shooting. The Plaintiff sued the owner of Queenie's Café for negligent security, dram shop and in addition to compensatory damages, sought punitive damages.

Queenie's Café had security on the night of the shooting which included a quick pat-down and metal wand for patrons coming in. Somehow the shooter got in without the gun being discovered. At the conclusion of Plaintiff's case, the Defendant's motion for non-suit was granted on the dram shop count and punitive damages was granted. The case went to the jury on negligent security and the jury answered NO as to negligent security.

An interesting issue in the case was the extent of the written settlement entered into between the Plaintiff and Defendant one week after the shooting for $10,000 cash. The agreement was part of the evidence. The Defendant claims the agreement was for a global settlement. The Plaintiff claimed the settlement was for pain and suffering only and did not include damages for medical expenses and disfigurement caused by the shooting and subsequent surgery. The language of the settlement agreement produced by the Plaintiff at trial, stated "pain-and-suffering only." The Defendant claimed that language was not in the original agreement when she signed it.

Trial dates: December 10-12, 2018

Trial Summary: Plaintiffs, Brian and David Legge, were the owners of a Standardbred racehorse named Eloquent Diva ("Diva") and consigned her for sale at the annual Harrisburg Yearling Sale conducted by Standardbred Horse Sales Company ("SHSC"). The morning of the sale, an area of edema was discovered on Diva's abdomen which SHSC deemed of little significance and did not announce the condition at the sale. Defendant, with knowledge of the condition, did not take advantage of the opportunity to perform further examination. On November 4, 2013, Defendant Richard Young successfully bid $67,000 to purchase Diva at the public auction. Within just days after the auction, Mr. Young learned that Diva was born with a serious heart defect and notified SHSC that he was revoking his purchase and that he intended to return Diva. SHSC responded that Defendant had a "bona fide objection" to the transaction based upon Diva's diagnosis and notified him that SHSC would not seek payment. However, Plaintiffs would not permit Defendant to revoke his purchase or return Diva but agreed to share the cost of a diagnostic examination. It was determined that Diva had a congenital heart murmur which greatly affected her ability to train and become a racehorse. Consequently, Diva remained in the custody of Defendant and Defendant was forced to board and care for the horse for the duration of her diminished lifespan.

SHSC assigned its contractual rights to Plaintiffs who initiated this lawsuit for breach of contract. Plaintiffs, as SHSC's contractual assignees, relied entirely on the non-negotiable boilerplate language of the Terms and Conditions of the sale which appeared in the "Black Book" published annually by SHSC and made available to attendees of the auction in advance of the sale. Specifically, the "As Is" clause provided that "all horses are sold as is with all faults and defects" and that bidders accept all risks. However, the Terms and Conditions contain exceptions to the "As Is" clause for horses bought with latent reproductive issues. The crux of this case centered on whether Defendant breached the contract by not paying for Diva despite her congenital heart defect because of the existence of the "As Is" clause or whether Plaintiffs waived its contractual right to demand payment for Diva based upon SHSC's express warranty that Diva was a racehorse or broodmare.

Plaintiffs, in their claim for breach of contract as SHSC's assignee, sought payment of Defendant's successful auction bid in the amount of $67,000. Defendant asserted a defense that Diva was a non-conforming good under the Uniform Commercial Code thus rendering the "As Is" clause invalid. Defendant asserted a counterclaim to recover the costs he incurred to board and care for Diva prior to her death which was alleged to be $27,831.84.

Pretrial Motions: Plaintiffs filed numerous motions in limine. The Court precluded Defendant from suggesting that the congenital cardiac defect suffered by Diva was fundamentally similar or analogous to a reproductive condition or deficiency in a colt in order for the condition to fall under the exception to the "As Is" clause.

Defense expert, Dr. Reef, opined in her report that the murmurs associated with Diva's VSD should have been detectable on a routine veterinary examination through auscultation with a stethoscope, which was not done prior to her sale. Because there were no allegations of veterinary negligence asserted in this case, Dr. Reef was precluded from testifying as to the standard of care during a routine veterinary examination, or from expressing any opinion or criticism of the new foal examination of Diva by her veterinarian, Dr. Pink. The Court limited the scope of Dr. Reef's testimony to the contents of the veterinary records from the dates she treated Diva.

Plaintiff sought to preclude the testimony of Dr. Barabas who treated Diva after 11/11/2013 because no veterinary records of Diva's care and treatment after this date were produced during discovery, except for invoices. The Court permitted the testimony only as it related to the invoices and allowed the invoices to be admitted as evidence of the cost of boarding and veterinary care for Diva while in the Defendant's custody.

Plaintiff's Retained Experts

Courtney C. Pink, DVM, was the veterinarian who foaled Diva and managed her care until she was shipped to Canada as a yearling. Dr. Pink had participated at the SHSC as the farm veterinarian since 2008. Dr. Pink testified consistent with her expert report that Diva never demonstrated any clinical signs that would indicate that she had a cardiac defect before she was sold at auction. Therefore, there was never any reason to perform a cardiac examination or testing. Plaintiffs had no knowledge of Diva having a cardiac problem nor did they have reason to suspect a cardiac problem.

Robert Boni, owner of the Northwest Bloodstock (consignment company) with fifty years of experience buying and selling horses, opined that a buyer at a public auction has the opportunity to physically examine the horses prior to sale. This was clearly set forth and prominent in the sales catalogue (The Black Book). However, Defendant admittedly chose not to perform an exam on Diva, although he had done so at previous auctions. He testified that Defendant was an experienced buyer with over 25 years of participating in horse sales. At the time he purchased Diva, he was very much aware of the rules and practices of buying horses at public auction, including the standard practice that the horses are being purchased "As Is" without any representations or warranties unless otherwise announced.

Defense Retained Experts:

Dr. Virginia B. Reef, D.V.M., Penn Vet, New Bolton Center, examined Diva four days after the auction for loud bilateral systolic murmurs and a plaque of ventral edema that had been detected by Dr. Steve Dey following her purchase at the Harrisburg sale. Dr. Reef diagnosed Diva as suffering from a congenital heart defect known as ventriculoseptal defect ("VSD") and gave her a "guarded" prognosis.

Bob Marks' testimony was presented via video trial deposition. He has been a breeder and merchandiser for 25 years and is an auction professional. Mr. Marks opined that the standard practice is that the sales company and consignors will typically relieve dissatisfied purchasers when latent examinations disclose previously unnoticed issues, regardless of "As Is" clauses.

Exhibits:

A joint trial list was expertly displayed by Capital Litigation Support Services.

Verdict:

After two days of trial, the jury found that Plaintiffs did not prove that Defendant breached the contract to pay for Diva. The jury also found that Defendant should be awarded damages because he was not permitted to return Diva and awarded Defendant $27,831.85.
