Fletcher v. DeHart

defendants' surveillance could be considered "process" encompassed within the workers' compensation claim, the abuse of process assertion would still fail since there was no abuse here; the surveillance of a workers' compensation claimant was undertaken for the purpose for which it was designed. Defendants' surveillance did nothing more than carry out the workers' compensation process to its authorized conclusion. Al Hamilton Contracting, supra. The use of surveillance by the insurance and litigation defense industries to counter fraud has long been accepted as a legitimate enterprise under Pennsylvania law. See, Forster, supra. As such, plaintiff's claim must be dismissed.

Accordingly, this court enters the following:

ORDER

AND NOW, this 27th day of May, 2009, following this court's review of the parties' cross motions for summary judgment, the relevant record, the parties' briefs and following oral argument thereon, this court directs that Defendants' Motion is hereby GRANTED and Plaintiff's Complaint is dismissed in its entirety, with prejudice.

Contracts — Third Party Beneficiary — Release of Liability/Exculpatory Clause — Public Policy.

Defendants sought a judgment on the pleadings in this slip and fall case. They argued that Plaintiff, who provided in-home care services as an independent contractor, had released them from liability under an exculpatory clause in a document she had previously executed for a referral agency. Plaintiff had signed the document more than three years before she began working for Defendants.

1. Under Pennsylvania law, exculpatory clauses that provide immunity from liability are "admittedly not favored in the law." Zimmer v. Mitchell and Ness, 385 A.2d 437, 439 (Pa. Super. 1978), aff'd, 416 A.2d 1011 (Pa. 1980).

2. With regard to the employer/employee relationship, courts almost universally find exculpatory clauses in employment contracts void as against public policy, where the agreement relates to injury to the employee in the course of employment. Bunia v. Knight Ridder, 544 N.W.2d 60, 63 (Mn. App. 1996), review denied, 1996 Minn. LEXIS 346 (Mn. 1996). On the other hand, an exculpatory clause is more apt to be held valid where it is negotiated between an employer and an independent contractor, since it is assumed that independent contractors are on an equal footing with the employer and can bargain for more equitable terms. See Id. at 63. However, where an independent contractor is subject to his or her employer's superior bargaining status and workplace control, exculpatory contracts may be considered contrary to public policy. See Karen M. Espaldon, "Virginia's Rule of Non-Waiver of Liability for Negligent Acts," 2 Geo. Mason L. Rev. 27, 34 (1994).

3. In order for a third party beneficiary to have standing to recover on a contract, both contracting parties must have expressed an intention that the third party be a beneficiary, and that intention must have affirmatively appeared in the contract itself. Spires v. Hanover Fire Insurance Co., 70 A.2d 828, 830-31 (1950).

Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings. C.P., Dau. Co., No. 2008 CV 2153. Motion denied.

Richard F. Maffett, Jr., for Plaintiff

Jessica W. Leisawitz, for Defendants

TURGEON, J., July 24, 2009. – The defendants, Executors of the Estate of Philip DeHart, seek judgment on the pleadings, arguing that the plaintiff Ann Fletcher, who provided homecare services to the late Philip DeHart and who allegedly suffered personal injury from a slip and fall on his property, released Philip DeHart from any liability for his own negligence. For the reasons set forth below, this court denies defendants' motion.

BACKGROUND

On December 15, 2006, defendant Drake DeHart, as power of attorney for his father Philip DeHart, entered into a contract with Visiting Angels of Harrisburg under which Visiting Angels agreed to refer an in-home caregiver to Philip DeHart. (Defendant's Motion for Judgment on Pleadings, Exbt. D (Answer to Amended Complaint, Exhibit B therein) The contract identified Philip DeHart as the "client" and Visiting Angels as a "referral service." Under the terms of the contract, the client agreed to pay Visiting Angels an hourly fee based upon the number of hours the caregiver provided non-medical homecare services to Philip DeHart; the client also agreed to directly pay wages to the caregiver. The contract between the DeHarts and Visiting Angels, drafted by Visiting Angels, defined the triumvirate of relationships as follows:

RELATIONSHIPS: The Referred Caregiver will work directly for you and not for us as your employee or independent contractor. ... We do not pay any funds to the referred caregiver and we do not pay any taxes on behalf of the referred caregiver. You [Philip DeHart] hereby release us [Visiting Angels] from responsibility for any events that may be harmful to the care recipient in the course of receiving services from the referred caregiver. You agree to maintain homeowners insurance, medical insurance and/or other insurance as necessary to provide protection for the care recipient. ...

Visiting Angels referred plaintiff Ann Fletcher to provide non-medical homecare to Philip DeHart and she began providing those services to him in December 2006. The pleadings do not reveal the existence of any written contract entered between the DeHarts and plaintiff at that time. Plaintiff's obligations were set forth in documents prepared by Visiting Angels which plaintiff signed on August 11, 2003. One of the documents was titled "Caregiver/Client Agreement (Independent Contractor)." (Defendant's Motion for Judgment on Pleadings, Exbt. D (Exhibit A therein)) That document, which is just over one page long, identifies plaintiff as an "independent contractor" and describes the services plaintiff will provide to clients referred to her by Visiting Angels. The last paragraph of the Caregiver/Client Agreement contains language that plaintiff agreed to release clients from any liability for harm caused to her while she was providing services for them. It states:

You [Ann Fletcher] agree to release CLIENT from any/all responsibility for any incidents which may occur which are personally harmful to you while you are performing services to clients (or in traveling to and from the client's residence) including all injuries, or potential loss of revenue. You agree that it is your responsibility to obtain your own liability insurance, health insurance and disability and/or worker's compensation insurance.

Id. At the end of the document are two signature lines: one for plaintiff's signature and another denoted as "For Client." On August 11, 2003, someone initialed, or made a mark of some kind, under the Client signature line.<sup>1</sup>

In another document signed by plaintiff August 11, 2003, plaintiff contracted with Visiting Angels to provide in-home services to referred

1. The mark might say "all" though that is not clear. In any event, the mark on the client signature line was obviously not provided by Drake DeHart, on his father Philip DeHart's behalf, since he did not seek out Visiting Angels' services until more than three years later.

Fletcher v. DeHart

clients.<sup>2</sup> Id. That contract detailed plaintiff's contractual obligations to Visiting Angels including a detailed description of the services and tasks that she, as "caregiver," was to provide to those Visiting Angels' clients she agreed to work for on referral. That contract also defined plaintiff's relationship to Visiting Angels as an "independent contractor" and established that she had the option to accept or decline any referral, but that if she did accept a referral, she would be deemed to be working directly for the client. This contract also contained the following release of liability language:

You [Ann Fletcher] agree to release VISITING ANGELS from any/all responsibility for any incidents that may occur that are personally harmful to you while you are performing services to clients (or in traveling to and from the client's residence) including all injuries, or potential loss of revenue. We do not provide any insurance to cover you for any events that may take place in the homes of your clients. You agree that it is your responsibility to obtain your own liability insurance, health insurance and disability and/or worker's compensation insurance.

On February 22, 2007, plaintiff slipped and fell on snow and ice which she alleges was not properly removed from Philip DeHart's sidewalk. Plaintiff suffered a left femur fracture and other permanent injuries. In order to obtain a remedy for her injuries, plaintiff filed workers' compensation claims against both Visiting Angels and the DeHarts and also initiated this current tort action. Her workers' compensation claims were denied on grounds that she was not an employee of either the DeHarts or Visiting Angels. Fletcher v. Saia, Nicole, LLC d/b/a Visiting Angels Living Assistant Services, Estate of Philip W. DeHart and Drake P. DeHart. DO., PA BWC Claim Nos. 3134407, 3192016 and 3192030 and W.C.A.B. Case Nos. A08-1220, A08-1221, and A08-1222.

In this action, defendants Drake DeHart, and Drake and Scott DeHart as Executors of the Estate of Philip DeHart,<sup>3</sup> argue that they are entitled to judgment on the pleadings under the terms of the release of liability provision in the Caregiver/Client Agreement that plaintiff had signed more than three years before she began to work for Philip DeHart.

2. The title of the Visiting Angels-caregiver agreement is not legible in the documents attached to the pleadings.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

A motion for judgment on the pleadings is similar to a demurrer and may be entered where there are no disputed issues of fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Pa.R.C.P. 1034. In determining if there is a dispute as to facts, the court must confine its consideration to the pleadings and relevant documents. Kelaco v. Davis & McKean, 743 A.2d 525, 528 (Pa. Super. 1999). The Court must accept as true the plaintiff's well-pleaded averments of fact, considering against her only those facts she specifically admits. Beckman v. Dunn, 419 A.2d 583, 585 (Pa. Super. 1980). Plaintiff cannot be deemed to admit either conclusions of law or unjustified inferences. West Penn Administration, Inc. v. Pittsburgh National Bank, 433 A.2d 896, 900 (Pa. Super. 1981). Judgment on the pleadings can only be granted where the moving party's right to prevail is so certain that it is clear a trial would be a fruitless exercise. Id.

Defendants argue that they are entitled to judgment as a matter of law since Philip DeHart was an intended third party beneficiary of the release of liability language contained in the Caregiver/Client Agreement. This court disagrees.

The release language in the Caregiver/Client Agreement – under which the caregiver agreed “to release CLIENT from any/all responsibility for any incidents which may occur which are personally harmful to [caregiver] you while you are performing services to clients ... including all injuries ...” — is in the nature of an exculpatory clause. An exculpatory clause is a contractual waiver of the right to sue, executed before a loss occurs. Black's Law Dictionary, 608 (8th ed. 2004). Under Pennsylvania law, exculpatory clauses that provide immunity from liability are “admittedly not favored in the law.” Zimmer v. Mitchell and Ness, 385 A.2d 437, 439 (Pa. Super. 1978), aff'd, 416 A.2d 1011 (Pa. 1980); see, Prosser & Keeton on Torts, §92, at 656 (5th ed. 1984) (“[e]xculpatory clauses or liability releases are generally disfavored because they are contrary to the general rule that a party can commence an action against another negligent party and bring that action to fruition.”). “Nevertheless, where the intention of the parties is spelled out with particularity and their agreement shows an unequivocally expressed purpose to release from liability, the law will give effect to that agreement.” Valeo v. Pocono International Raceway, Inc., 500 A.2d 492, 493 (Pa. Super. 1985).

Fletcher v. DeHart

This court has reviewed the Caregiver/Client Agreement in which the exculpatory clause/release provision is contained, as well as the other related written agreements entered into amongst the parties and Visiting Angels, described above. Though Visiting Angels drafted the writing in which the client, Philip DeHart, is exculpated from his own negligence as against the caregiver, plaintiff Ann Fletcher, it does not appear as a legal certainty to this court that the Caregiver/Client Agreement was intended as a contract between plaintiff caregiver and Visiting Angels, under which defendants' defense as a third party beneficiary allegedly arises. Instead, the language of the Caregiver/Client Agreement reveals an intent that it was to constitute a contract form to be executed in the future between plaintiff caregiver and the future client, not plaintiff caregiver and Visiting Angels.

When the language of the contract is clear and unequivocal, courts interpret the meaning by its content. Biddle v. Johnsonbaugh, 664 A.2d 159, 163 (Pa. Super. 1995) (citation omitted). "In cases of a written contract, the intent of the parties is the writing itself. If left undefined, the terms of a contract are to be given their ordinary meaning. When the terms of a contract are clear and unambiguous, the intent of the parties is to be ascertained from the document itself." Nissley v. Candytown Motorcycle Club, Inc., 913 A.2d 887, 889 (Pa. Super. 2006) (citation omitted)

Notably, the document in which the exculpatory clause appears is in fact titled "Caregiver/Client Agreement" evidencing an intent within the writing that the plaintiff caregiver and her clients were to be the parties to the contract. Furthermore, the contract contains two signature lines at the end: one for "Caregiver" and another "For Client." Additionally, though the Agreement was drafted by Visiting Angels, the terms therein relate solely to the duties that the plaintiff caregiver owed to a client. There is no language anywhere within the terms of the Caregiver/Client Agreement that mentions Visiting Angels or covers any obligations between Visiting Angels and plaintiff caregiver or Visiting Angels and the client. (Defendant's Motion for Judgment on Pleadings, Exbt. D (Exhibit A therein)) The terms between Visiting Angels and plaintiff caregiver are covered in a separate contract plaintiff entered with Visiting Angels that same day (August 11, 2003), described above. That contract was clearly intended as an agreement of mutual understanding between Visiting Angels and plaintiff. Id. Furthermore, there is no language in either of these documents indicating an intent that their terms be integrated or interpreted together.

Fletcher v. DeHart

Instead, to the extent that defendants seek to assert the exculpatory clause/release as an affirmative defense, that defense must arise as defendants' primary right directly from the Caregiver/Client Agreement in which the exculpatory clause/release is set forth and not as a third party beneficiary thereto. However, this court finds, under the pleadings of record, that the exculpatory clause/release term was never bargained for between those parties (caregiver and client) and thus did not become part of their contract for homecare services. Parties form a valid contract when they "1) reach a mutual understanding, 2) exchange consideration, and 3) delineate the terms of their bargain with sufficient clarity." Weaverton Transp. Leasing, Inc. v. Moran, 834 A.2d 1169, 1172 (Pa. Super. 2003). A party may accept an offer through conduct alone, but any such conduct should be judged on the "basis of what a reasonable person in the position of the parties would be led to understand by such conduct under all of the surrounding circumstances." Id. (citations omitted).

The parties commenced a business relationship sometime in December 2006, when Visiting Angels referred plaintiff caregiver to client Philip DeHart; however, the pleadings do not reveal that caregiver and client entered a written contract at that time. Nor is there any claim in the pleadings that they reached an oral agreement under which plaintiff caregiver agreed to release defendant client from any liability for his own negligence. Instead, the defense asserted by defendants must necessarily arise from the exculpatory clause/release included in the Caregiver/Client Agreement that pre-dated the existence of the parties' business relationship. Plaintiff signed that Agreement on August 11, 2003. However, defendants did not sign that contract.

A written contract that is not signed by both parties can still create a valid, binding agreement if both parties manifest their assent to its terms. Daniel Adams Associates, Inc. v. Rimbach Publishing Co., 519 A.2d 997, 1004 (Pa. Super. 1987). Here, however, there is no assertion in the pleadings that when plaintiff was referred by Visiting Angels to provide homecare services to Philip DeHart in December 2006, that his son, with power of attorney, even knew of the existence of the 2003 Caregiver/Client Agreement, including the exculpatory clause/release. Nor is there any allegation in the pleadings that the parties thereafter dealt or negotiated with each other in such a manner that they assented to the terms of the pre-existing exculpatory clause/release in the 2003 Caregiver/Client Agreement. Compare, Valhal Corp. v. Sullivan Assocs., 44 F.3d 195, 201 (3d Cir. 1995) (court, applying Pennsylvania law, held that where defendant did not sign a contract including a limitation of liability clause, defendant could still assert the clause as a defense where the parties' course of dealings and negotiations indicated assent to the clause; "an unsigned contract can include an enforceable agreement to limit liability if both parties manifest their approval of the terms"). As such, the exculpatory clause/release in the Caregiver/Client Agreement, bearing only the signature of the plaintiff, is unenforceable against the plaintiff caregiver because the pleadings do not reveal that plaintiff and the defendants ever agreed to these terms.

Alternatively, even assuming that the Caregiver/Client Agreement could be interpreted as a contract entered into between Visiting Angels and plaintiff caregiver, such that the defendants could be a potential third party beneficiary to the exculpatory clause/release therein, it is unclear under our standard of review that the moving party's right to prevail is so certain that trial would be a fruitless exercise. Specifically, it is unclear as a matter of law that the exculpatory clause/release, as applied to a third party beneficiary in an employment context, does not contravene public policy. See, Nissley, supra at 890.

Initially, this court notes that to the extent that the Caregiver/Client Agreement was a valid contract entered between plaintiff and Visiting Angels, the defendants would have standing to assert that Philip DeHart had been an intended beneficiary to the exculpatory clause/release as a matter of law. See, Hicks v. Metropolitan Edison Co., 665 A.2d 529, 536 (Pa. Commw. 1995), app. denied, 675 A.2d 1253 (Pa. 1996) (whether a party is to be accorded third party beneficiary status is an issue of law). In order for a third party beneficiary to have standing to recover on a contract, both contracting parties must have expressed an intention that the third party be a beneficiary, and that intention must have affirmatively appeared in the contract itself. Spires v. Hanover Fire Insurance Co., 70 A.2d 828, 830-31 (1950). Our supreme court has adopted the Restatement (Second) of Contracts, §302 (1979), as a guide for analysis of third party beneficiary claims. Section 302 states:

Intended and Incidental Beneficiaries

- (1) Unless otherwise agreed between promisor and promisee, a beneficiary of a promise is an intended beneficiary if recognition of a right to performance in the beneficiary is appropriate to effectuate the intentions of the parties and either

(a) the performance of the promise will satisfy an obligation of the promisee to pay money to the beneficiary; or

(b) the circumstances indicate that the promisee intends to give the beneficiary the benefit of the promised performance.

(2) An incidental beneficiary is a beneficiary who is not an intended beneficiary.

Restatement (Second) of Contracts §302 (1979).

Scarpitti v. Weborg, 609 A.2d 147, 149-150 (Pa. 1992).

Consequently, this Court in Guy concluded:

There is thus a two part test for determining whether one is an intended third party beneficiary: (1) the recognition of the beneficiary's right must be "appropriate to effectuate the intention of the parties," and (2) the performance must "satisfy an obligation of the promisee to pay money to the beneficiary" or "the circumstances indicate that the promisee intends to give the beneficiary the benefit of the promised performance."

Guy v. Liederbach, 501 Pa. at 60, 459 A.2d at 751. The first part of the test sets forth a standing requirement which leaves discretion with the court to determine whether recognition of third party beneficiary status would be appropriate. The second part defines the two types of claimants who may be intended as third party beneficiaries. If a party satisfies both parts of the test, a claim may be asserted under the contract. Id.

Id. at 149-150. The exculpatory clause/release explicitly identifies a "client" as a party for whom the release is made. The language in the clause is clear that plaintiff caregiver and Visiting Angels intended to benefit future homecare clients with a release from their own liability as against a caregiver.

Plaintiff argues that because there was a lack of consideration for the release, the contract can not be enforced in favor of a third party. The law, however, is that "[a] benefit to a third person is sufficient consideration to sustain a promise." Weaverton at 1172 (citation omitted); but see, Garbish v. Malvern Fed. Sav. & Loan Assoc., 517 A.2d 547, 556

(Pa. Super. 1986), appeal denied, 533 A.2d 712 (Pa. 1987) (holding that because the third party was not a party to the agreement in which exculpatory clauses appeared, and because there was no consideration for the exculpatory clauses, they were unenforceable).

We thus turn our attention to the primary issue in this case, which is whether under the circumstances the exculpatory clause/release is valid and enforceable by the defendants, as a third party beneficiary:

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court established the law for interpreting exculpatory agreements in Employers Liability Assurance Corp. v. Greenville Business Men's Assoc., 423 Pa. 288, 224 A.2d 620 (Pa. 1966). The Court held that an exculpatory agreement was valid if: (1) it did not contravene public policy; (2) was between persons and related to their own personal affairs; and (3) the agreement was not a contract of adhesion. Id. at 623. Drawing upon its decisions in other cases, it held that the following standards must be met to establish that an exculpatory clause relieves a party of liability: (1) the agreement must be construed strictly since it is not favored by the law; (2) such agreements “must spell out the intention of the parties with the greatest of particularity” and show the intent to release from liability “beyond doubt by express stipulation,” because “(n)o inference from words of general import can establish it”; (3) such agreements “must be construed with every intendment against the party who seeks the immunity from liability”; and (4) “the burden to establish immunity from liability is upon the party who asserts such immunity.” Id.

Nissley, supra at 890. See also, Wang v. Whitetail Mt. Resort, 933 A.2d 110, 113 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2007).<sup>4</sup>

As to the first element, contracts have been held to violate public policy when they involve a matter of interest to the public or the state.

4. This court was able to find very few decisions assessing the applicability of a pre-event exculpatory clause sought to be enforced by a third party beneficiary. See, Garbish, supra, (exculpatory clause held unenforceable because of a lack of consideration rendered by the third party beneficiary); Strauss v. 717 H.B. Phila. Corp., 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11366 (E.D. Pa. 1986) (exculpatory clause enforceable in favor of third party beneficiary and exculpatory clause not otherwise in contravention of public policy). There are numerous Pennsylvania appellate decisions involving third parties seeking to assert third party beneficiary status to a post-event general release. See e.g., Buttermore v. Aliquippa Hospital, 561 A.2d 733, 735 (Pa. 1989); Ford Motor Co. v. Buseman, 954 A.2d 580 (Pa. Super. 2008); and Holmes v. Lankenau Hospital, 627 A.2d 763, 770 (Pa. Super. 1993), allocatur denied, 649 A.2d 673 (Pa. 1994).

Fletcher v. DeHart

Leidy v. Deseret Enters. Inc., 381 A.2d 164, 167 (Pa. Super. 1977). “[M]atters of interest to the public or the state include the employer-employee relationship, public service, public utilities, common carriers, and hospitals.” Seaton v. E. Windsor Speedway, Inc., 582 A.2d 1380, 1382-83 (Pa. Super. 1990) (citing Leidy at 167).

With regard to the employer/employee relationship, courts almost universally find exculpatory clauses in employment contracts void as against public policy where the agreement relates to injury to the employee in the course of employment. Bunia v. Knight Ridder, 544 N.W.2d 60, 63 (Mn. App. 1996), review denied, 1996 Minn. LEXIS 346 (Mn. 1996) (citing W. Page Keeton et al., Prosser and Keeton on the Law of Torts §68, at 482 (5th ed. 1984) (other citations omitted)). “The basis for such a result usually is stated to be the disparity in bargaining power and the economic necessity which forces the employee to accept the employer’s terms, with the general policy of the law which protects him against the employer’s negligence and against unreasonable contracts of employment.” Id. (quoting Restatement (Second) of Torts §496B cmt. f (1995)); see also, Karen M. Espaldon, “Virginia’s Rule of Non-Waiver of Liability for Negligent Acts,” 2 Geo. Mason L. Rev. 27, 32-33, n. 29 (1994) (“Employees are often perceived as having no other alternative but to accept the risks of their working conditions in exchange for the wages their employer pays them. This asymmetry in the parties’ bargaining power forces the employee to accept the employer’s terms, even if those terms are undesirable to the employee.” ... Workers’ compensation schemes generally embody this rule with a provision that an employer and employee may not agree to waive the statute’s applicability.”).

On the other hand, an exculpatory clause is more apt to be held valid where it is negotiated between an employer and an independent contractor since it is assumed that independent contractors are on an equal footing with the employer and can bargain for more equitable terms. Bunia at 63; Espaldon at 33. “One additional distinguishing factor is the degree of control which the employer exerts over the other party. Independent contractors usually retain a large measure of control over the manner in which their work is to be performed, while an employee is one who is subject to the direction of his employer.” Espaldon at 33. However, where an independent contractor is subject to his or her employer’s superior bargaining status and workplace control, exculpatory contracts may be considered contrary to public policy. See Id. at 34.

Fletcher v. DeHart

This court has not found any Pennsylvania appellate decisions assessing the validity of an exculpatory clause/release on grounds that it is against public policy in the context of an independent contractor relationship. A Minnesota appellate court, however, has addressed a similar issue and held such a clause void as against public policy. Bunia, supra. This court finds that holding persuasive. In Bunia, the plaintiff newspaper carrier slipped and fell on snow and ice while stacking newspapers. Plaintiff had been hired by defendant news publisher as an independent contractor. The defendant argued plaintiff's action was barred by an exculpatory agreement that plaintiff had executed at the time she was hired. The agreement held the employer harmless for any future injury to the plaintiff including for the employer's own negligence. The Court, in refusing to enforce the exculpatory clause, explained as follows:

When she agreed to the clause at issue here, Bunia was in circumstances nearly identical to that of an employee. Although the law generally treats independent contractors differently from employees, the disparity in bargaining power between Bunia, a newspaper carrier, and the Pioneer Press, a major newspaper publisher, is comparable to — if not greater than — that of most employers and employees. And her need to obtain a source of income — albeit as an independent contractor — is parallel to that of an employee. Bunia contracted for a consideration (income) that was essential, not discretionary, to her, and she assented to the exculpatory clause from a position of inferior bargaining power. Her contractual assumption of risk was thus invalid.

Id. at 63. See also, Colagiovanni v. New Haven Acquisition Corp., 2006 Conn. Super. LEXIS 3387 (Conn. App. 2006) (holding that an exculpatory clause in favor of defendant employer as against independent contractor newspaper carrier violated public policy, citing Bunia).

A noted, a primary reason that employers are not permitted to bargain away their potential liability for negligence that causes harm to their employees is due to the relative disparity in bargaining power between them. Employers employing independent contractors, on the other hand, have been permitted to enforce exculpatory provisions in their favor since they are generally considered on an equal footing with the independent contractor and can bargain for more equitable terms. As noted by one commentator, “[t]his is so perhaps because independent contractors usually possess highly desirable or specialized skills and can use market forces to their advantage during the negotiation of employment contracts.” Espaldon, supra at 33 n. 31.

There is nothing in the record in this case, however, to suggest that plaintiff, a homecare aide, had any bargaining power near to that of Visiting Angels.<sup>5</sup> There is similarly no record that plaintiff did not need to obtain employment through Visiting Angels. See, Colagiovanni, supra (noting that while the plaintiff was free to reject employment with defendant as an independent contractor, it was not disputed in the record before the court that the plaintiff needed the job, economically, or that the plaintiff was not in any position to negotiate the terms of the agreement). We also have no record beyond the pleadings, for instance, that personal care assistants such as plaintiff have true bargaining power within the industry or can only maintain employment and sustain a livelihood through independent contracts such as the one she entered with Visiting Angels. Nor do we know whether plaintiff had the ability to negotiate the release term with Visiting Angels; that is, would Visiting Angels still refer her clients if she refused to agree to the release in favor of future clients? The pleadings additionally fail to reveal whether it was economically feasible for plaintiff, as a home care aide, to obtain her own insurance coverage for liability, health, disability and workers’ compensation, as she agreed to do in her contract with Visiting Angels.

Furthermore, in this case, the exculpatory clause/release is sought to be enforced by a third party who did not bargain for this benefit and who the pleadings do not reveal was even aware of its existence at any point during the time plaintiff worked for Philip DeHart. Additionally, plaintiff did not maintain control over the safety of her work place

5. “As a group, home-based care workers are disproportionately poor and low-income women whose earnings place them near the bottom of the economic ladder. In 2006, they earned less per hour than workers employed as locker room and coatroom attendants, gaming-booth cashiers, meter readers, and bicycle repairers. In addition, most home-based care workers do not receive job-related benefits such as health insurance, medical leave, or retirement plans.” Peggie R. Smith, “The Publicization of Home-Based Care Work in State Labor Law,” 92 Minn. L. Rev. 1390, 1397 (2008). “[T]he industry picture looks dim when viewed from the perspective of home care workers. Home care as a job lags near the bottom of the economic ladder. ... the work is physically demanding and workers routinely confront workplace hazards including combative clients, muscle problems occasioned by lifting and moving immobile clients, and unsafe neighborhoods.” Peggie R. Smith, “Address: Home Sweet Home? Workplace Casualties of Consumer-Directed Home Care for the Elderly,” 21 ND J. L. Ethics & Pub Pol’y 537, 542 (2007) (footnotes omitted).

environment. Instead, the defendant client maintained that control. Work place safety is clearly a matter of public concern. Under the unusual circumstances by which defendants are asserting a release of liability for their own negligence — as a third party to a contract entered between plaintiff and Visiting Angels more than three years prior to when defendants hired plaintiff — it is unclear whether such a clause would be considered violative of public policy.

In summary, the law is not clear that an exculpatory clause such as the one before this court is not violative of public policy whereby the record fails to indicate that plaintiff had requisite bargaining power with the contracting party (Visiting Angels) and where that clause is made in favor of a third party client who controls the safety of her work place environment.

Accordingly, I enter the following:

ORDER

AND NOW, this 24th day of July 2009, it is hereby directed that Defendants' Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings is hereby DENIED.

UPSET SALE CONDITIONS

The following conditions shall govern the sale of properties by the Dauphin County Tax Claim Bureau for delinquent taxes as scheduled for September 21, 2009 and to such date to which the sale may be adjourned. If necessary, the sale may be adjourned from week to week.

1. The initial bid must equal the fixed upset price. If the taxes for the current year are not included in the upset price, the purchaser must pay the taxes for the current year to the local collector. In addition to the upset price, the purchaser must pay the 2% State Realty Transfer Tax, calculated in accordance with applicable valuation regulations, and the recording fee. These items will be computed after the property has been struck down to the successful bidder. The upset price, the transfer tax and the recording fee MUST BE PAID AT THE SAME TIME. At the option of the Tax Claim Bureau the purchaser shall pay either by cash, or a personal/business check drawn on a local Harrisburg bank and paid to the order of the Tax Claim Bureau.

2. All listed sales are subject to prior redemption by the owner and to confirmation by the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, Pennsylvania.

3. The Tax Claim Bureau will issue a deed to the registered bidder upon confirmation of the sale by the Court of Common Pleas. In the event the registered bidder elects to have the deed issued in the name of a nominee or assignee, the registered bidder must provide written and notarized authorization from the nominee or assignee to act as his, her, or its agent. The deed will not contain any warranty of title. Approximately THREE MONTHS TIME FROM THE DATE OF THE SEPTEMBER 21, 2009 sale is required before the deed will be delivered to the purchaser.

4. The Bureau will sell the property as described on the dockets in the Tax Claim Bureau, and makes no representation or warranty as to description.

5. All properties are sold under and by virtue of the Act of 1947, P.L. 1368, as amended, known as the "REAL ESTATE TAX SALE LAW." All titles transferred by the Tax Claim Bureau are under and subject to said Act, including but not limited to the divestiture of liens provisions of the Act.

6. NO property scheduled for sale will be struck down unless the bid equals or exceeds the upset sale price as announced. In the event of a dispute by bidders, or failure of the successful bidder to pay the purchase price the property will again be put up for sale. Payment for all properties sold between 6 P.M. and the close of the first session must be paid immediately after the last property is struck down or the property will again be put up for sale.

7. The Tax Claim Bureau will sell subject to the existing occupancy if any. This sale does NOT INCLUDE THE CONTENTS.

8. All properties sold are under and subject to the payment of recording fees, transfer taxes, and municipal or governmental claims not paid out of the sale price, and any other lien not divested by the sale.

9. NO SALE SHALL BE CANCELED AND MONEY RETURNED TO THE PURCHASER. MAKE SURE OF WHAT YOU ARE BUYING BEFORE THE BIDDING. CHECK ALL PARCELS AND ADDRESSES FIRST.

10. Any successful bidder who fails to provide the certification required by Act 133, P.L. 1368, No. 542, enacted December 21, 1998, in conjunction with this tax sale may be prohibited from registering for any future tax sales conducted by the Dauphin County Tax Claim Bureau.

11. Checks returned to the Tax Claim Bureau for insufficient funds or stop payments may be turned over to the District Attorney's Office for appropriate action. The Bureau maintains a list of those persons whose checks were not honored by their lending institution, and they will not be permitted to register at any future tax sale conducted by the Dauphin County Tax Claim Bureau.

12. The upset sale will be held in the second floor Main Ball Room of the Crowne Plaza Hotel at 23 South Second Street, Harrisburg. Picture identification with a current address is required. Registration of bidders will begin at 3 PM.
