Commonwealth v. Weathers

Crimes and Criminal Procedure - Traffic Stop - Following too Closely - Search and Seizure - Probable Cause

Defendant sought to suppress evidence seized from his vehicle after he was stopped for following too closely.

1. The driver of a motor vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonable and prudent, having due regard for the speed of the vehicles and the traffic upon and the condition of the highway. Motor Vehicle Code § 3310(a).

2. When a police officer observes a vehicle traveling on a highway within the speed limit -- approximately fifty-five (55) to sixty-five (65) miles per hour -- probable cause for violation of section 3310(a) of the Vehicle Code likely exists if the vehicle is traveling two (2) to three (3) feet, or less than a motorcycle length, behind another vehicle, but probable cause unlikely exists if the vehicle is following another vehicle at a distance of more than one (1) car length. Merely observing a vehicle traveling two (2) to two and a half (2.5) car lengths behind another vehicle on a highway within the speed limit would not have caused a reasonable and prudent police officer to stop the driver for following too closely.

Motion to Suppress. C.P., Dau. Co., No. CP-22-CR-0002937-2017. Motion Granted.

Jonathan R. Clymer, for the Defendant

Tully, J., April 6, 2020

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Presently before this Court is a pretrial Motion to Suppress Evidence filed by Defendant Leslie M. Weathers (hereinafter “Defendant”). A suppression hearing was held on January 15, 2020 and this matter is now ripe for decision.

FACTUAL HISTORY

At the suppression hearing, the Commonwealth presented the testimony of Trooper Raymond Rutter (hereinafter “Trooper Rutter”) of the Pennsylvania State Police. Trooper Rutter’s testimony established the following facts: On March 3, 2017, at around 1:30 P.M., Trooper Rutter was sitting stationary monitoring traffic on Interstate 81 southbound in the area of mile marker 81. He observed Defendant’s vehicle traveling at a slower speed compared to the rest of traffic. When Defendant’s vehicle passed Trooper

Rutter, he observed Defendant, who was driving, to be hidden behind the middle B pillar of the vehicle. Based on these observations, Trooper Rutter decided to follow Defendant's vehicle. Before Trooper Rutter was able to catch up to Defendant's vehicle, Defendant's vehicle took Exit 80 off Interstate 81.

As Trooper Rutter continued on Interstate 81, he observed Defendant's vehicle immediately re-enter the highway. After seeing that Defendant's vehicle was now a few cars behind him in the right lane, Trooper Rutter pulled off into a rest area and waited for Defendant's vehicle to pass by. On cross examination, Trooper Rutter testified that when Defendant's vehicle was passing the rest area, he observed a vehicle from the left lane change lanes into the right lane in front of Defendant's vehicle. Trooper Rutter then observed Defendant's vehicle traveling approximately two (2) to two and a half (2.5) car lengths, which is about twenty-nine (29) to thirty-six (36) feet, behind the vehicle now in front. At that moment, Defendant's vehicle was traveling at about sixty (60) to sixty-five (65) miles per hour, which was within the posted speed limit of sixty-five (65) miles per hour. Conditions on the road were normal. The roads were dry, and the traffic was moderate. Based on these observations, Trooper Rutter believed that Defendant was driving too closely for the speed at which Defendant was driving. Trooper Rutter pulled onto the highway, caught up to Defendant's vehicle, and conducted a traffic stop for the violation of Motor Vehicle Code § 3310(a) Following too Closely.<sup>1</sup> The traffic stop was conducted near Exit 77.

Trooper Rutter then searched Defendant's vehicle and found marijuana, counterfeit shoes, and other counterfeit items — the evidence now in question. Defendant was subsequently placed under arrest.

DISCUSSION

Defendant argues that the physical evidence seized should be suppressed because it was the result of an unlawful traffic stop which violated the 4th Amendment of the United States Constitution and Article 1, Section 8 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Specifically, Defendant argues that Trooper Rutter did not possess the requisite probable cause prior to stopping Defendant's vehicle for a violation of § 3310(a) of the Motor Vehicle Code.

For a police officer to conduct a traffic stop for a violation of the Motor Vehicle Code, the police officer must have either reasonable suspicion or probable cause.<sup>2</sup> Under the authority of Motor Vehicle Code § 6308(b), traffic stops based on a reasonable suspicion of a violation of the Motor Vehicle Code must serve an investigatory purpose.<sup>3</sup> “Whenever a police officer is engaged in a systematic program of checking vehicles or drivers or has reasonable suspicion that a violation of this title is occurring or has occurred, he may stop a vehicle...to secure such other information as the officer may reasonably believe to be necessary to enforce the provisions of this title.”<sup>4</sup> The legislative intent of including the reasonable suspicion standard was to permit officers who suspect that a driver has committed a serious violation, i.e. § 3802 DUI or § 3782 Homicide by Vehicle, to stop the vehicle based on reasonable suspicion as opposed to the heightened standard of probable cause.<sup>5</sup>

Case law interpreting § 3608(b) focuses on the investigative nature of the stop.<sup>6</sup> In Commonwealth v. Feczko, the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, en banc, made a distinction as to “the investigative potential of a vehicle stop based on a reasonable suspicion of DUI as compared to other suspected violations” of the Motor Vehicle Code.<sup>7</sup> For example, a vehicle stop for a suspected DUI may lead to further incriminating evidence, such as slurred speech, bloodshot eyes, or a strong odor of alcohol. However, a stop for driving at an unsafe speed is unlikely to lead to further evidence relevant to that offense. The police officer would not “discover anything further from a stop and investigation” that would help the officer make a determination of the driver’s speed.<sup>8</sup> Accordingly, pursuant to § 3608(b), traffic stops based on a reasonable suspicion “must serve a stated investigatory purpose.”<sup>9</sup>

If the traffic stop cannot serve an investigatory purpose relevant to the suspected Motor Vehicle Code violation, mere reasonable suspicion will not justify a vehicle stop.<sup>10</sup> In such instance, the police officer must have probable cause.<sup>11</sup> Probable cause exists if the facts or circumstances known to the police officer warrant a prudent man in believing that a violation has been committed.<sup>12</sup> “It is incumbent upon the officer to articulate specific facts possessed by him, at the time of the questioned stop, which would provide probable cause to believe that the vehicle or the driver was in violation of some provision of the Code.”<sup>13</sup> In determining whether probable cause exists, the Court must “apply a totality of the circumstances test.”<sup>14</sup>

In the instant case, Trooper Rutter conducted a traffic stop of Defendant’s vehicle for a suspected violation of § 3310(a), which reads: “The driver of a motor vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonable and prudent, having due regard for the speed of the vehicles and the traffic upon and the condition of the highway.”<sup>15</sup> A traffic stop based on a violation of § 3310(a) cannot serve an investigatory purpose. Therefore, Trooper Rutter must have had probable cause to stop Defendant’s vehicle for a non-investigable violation of the Motor Vehicle Code.

Unfortunately, § 3310(a) is one of the more subjective violations of the Motor Vehicle Code – most often utilized when an accident occurs. An accident, although not dispositive, is an important factor that supports a finding of probable cause to believe that a vehicle had been unreasonably and imprudently following too closely. Without this important factor, however, probable cause relies heavily on a police officer’s subjective opinion, which can be a source of wide disagreement. Therefore, this Court notes that when an accident has not occurred, probable cause should be based on a clear violation of § 3310(a).

The Superior Court of Pennsylvania has, in several cases, addressed the issue of what constitutes probable cause in order to conduct a traffic stop for violation of § 3310(a). In Commonwealth v. Bybel, a state trooper observed Bybel “traveling around sixty-five (65) miles per hour, the posted speed limit, and approximately two (2) to three (3) feet behind a truck.”<sup>16</sup> The Superior Court found that Bybel “defied reason and prudence when she followed so very closely at such a high rate of speed.”<sup>17</sup>

In Commonwealth v. Phinn, police observed Phinn “traveling less than a motorcycle-length distance behind a tractor-trailer on Interstate 80 where the vehicles’ respective rates of speed were at or near the speed limit for that highway.”<sup>18</sup> The Superior Court found that Phinn was in violation of § 3310(a).<sup>19</sup>

In Commonwealth v. Samuel, a state trooper observed Samuel’s vehicle traveling fifty-five (55) miles per hour, which was within the posted speed limit, on Interstate 80 and following a tractor trailer directly in front of it by less than one car length.<sup>20</sup> The Superior Court, in an unpublished opinion, affirmed the lower court's decision that the trooper failed to meet the probable cause standard in conducting the traffic stop.<sup>21</sup> The lower court held that "a suspected violation of section 3310 of the Vehicle Code requires more articulation than just "traveling less than one car length" from another vehicle on the highway and a reasonable police officer would not have stopped defendants' vehicle."<sup>22</sup>

From these three (3) cases, this court can deduce that when a police officer observes a vehicle traveling on a highway within the speed limit — approximately fifty-five (55) to sixty-five (65) miles per hour — probable cause for violation of § 3310(a) likely exists if the vehicle is traveling two (2) to three (3) feet or less than a motorcycle length behind another vehicle, but probable cause unlikely exists if the vehicle is following another vehicle at a distance of more than one (1) car length.

In the instant case, Trooper Rutter testified that he observed Defendant's vehicle traveling on the right lane of a highway at a speed of sixty (60) to sixty-five (65) miles per hour, which was within the posted speed limit of sixty-five (65) miles per hour. Trooper Rutter testified that he observed a vehicle from the left lane move to the right lane in front of Defendant's vehicle. He then testified that he observed Defendant's vehicle following the front vehicle at a distance of two (2) to two and a half (2.5) car lengths, which is far greater than one (1) motorcycle length and clearly greater than one (1) car length. Trooper Rutter further testified that the road conditions on that day were safe and that the traffic was not heavy.

Based on the record established at the suppression hearing, this Court finds that Trooper Rutter lacked probable cause to conduct a traffic stop of Defendant's vehicle for a violation of § 3310(a) of the Motor Vehicle Code. Merely observing a vehicle traveling two (2) to two and a half (2.5) car lengths behind another vehicle on a highway within the speed limit would not have caused a reasonable and prudent police officer to stop the driver for following too closely. Moreover, testimony was unclear as to whether the proximity of the two vehicles was caused by the front vehicle changing lanes. Since the traffic stop was unlawful, it follows that the subsequent search of Defendant's vehicle was unlawful. Therefore, all physical evidence seized as a result of the unlawful traffic stop must be suppressed.

Accordingly, this Court enters the following order:

ORDER

AND NOW, this 6th day of April, 2020, following a suppression hearing on January 15, 2020, and having reviewed the evidence presented and all relevant statutes and case law, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendant's Motion to Suppress Evidence is GRANTED and all evidence seized as a result of the unlawful traffic stop of Defendant's vehicle shall be SUPPRESSED.
