As the Alexander Court noted, “obtaining a warrant is the default rule.” Id., at 208. The Commonwealth has not established that obtaining a warrant was “not reasonably practicable.” Id. Therefore, the search of Defendant’s vehicle violates Alexander and Article 1, Section 8 of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

ORDER OF COURT

AND NOW, this 1st day of April, 2021, after a hearing and upon consideration of the briefs submitted by both parties, for the reasons detailed in the attached Memorandum Opinion, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED AND DECREED THAT Defendant’s Omnibus Pretrial Motion to Suppress Evidence is GRANTED. All evidence obtained as a result of the warrantless entry into Defendant’s vehicle is suppressed.

Commonwealth v. Dayd

Crimes and Criminal Procedure – Search and Seizure – Automobiles – Retroactive Application of New Law

Defendant sought to suppress evidence seized from his vehicle based upon a new rule of law announced in Commonwealth v. Alexander, 243 A.3d 177 (Pa. 2020).

1. In Alexander, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania held that a warrantless search of an automobile requires both probable cause and exigent circumstances under Article 1, Section 8 of the Pennsylvania Constitution, overruling Commonwealth v. Gary, 91 A.3d 102 (Pa. 2014).
2. In Pennsylvania, retroactive application of a new rule of law is a matter of judicial discretion and is typically exercised on a case-by-case basis. In re L.J., 79 A.3d 1073 (2013). In reviewing the applicable case law, it was discovered that the three (3) factor test set forth in In re L.J. has been abrogated or overturned. Additionally, the origin of the three (3) factor test is based on federal law, not Pennsylvania law.
3. Retroactive application of a new rule of law under the Pennsylvania Constitution is controlled by Commonwealth v. Cabeza, 469 A.2d 146 (Pa. 1983), which held that an appellate decision that overrules prior law and announces a new principle shall be applied retroactively to cases where the issue in question has been properly preserved at all stages of adjudication unless the decision specifically declares the ruling to be prospective only.
4. The Commonwealth conceded that there were no exigent circumstances; however, argued that Alexander should not be applied retroactively.

Motion to Suppress. C.P., Dau. Co., No. CP-22-CR-0004819-2019. Motion Granted.

Alexander L. McNulty, for the Commonwealth

Jenni Chavis, for the Defendant.

Tully, J. April 6, 2021.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Presently before this Court is the Omnibus Pretrial Motion to Suppress Evidence filed by Defendant Brandon Dayd (hereinafter “Defendant”). A suppression hearing was held on March 3, 2021, and both parties have submitted post-hearing briefs in support of their respective positions. The matter is now ripe for decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On April 11, 2019, Defendant was charged with one (1) count of Manufacture, Delivery or Possession with Intent to Manufacture or Deliver (“PWI”). A preliminary hearing was held before Magisterial District Judge (“MDJ”) Michael J. Smith on September 23, 2019. Formal arraignment was held on November 8, 2019, and Defendant was given a miscellaneous date of December 30, 2019. Defendant filed an omnibus pretrial motion on February 4, 2021, based upon the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania’s decision in Commonwealth v. Alexander, 243 A.3d 177. A suppression hearing was held on March 3, 2021, and both sides were given an opportunity to file briefs in support of their respective positions.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

On April 11, 2019, Detective Patrick Corkle (hereinafter “Detective Corkle”) of the Swatara Township Police Department was surveilling the residence at 3417 Sharon Street for possible drug dealing. Detective Corkle was parked near the rear of the residence and observed a Mercury Grand Marquis with two (2) occupants inside arrive. The driver of the Mercury, who was subsequently identified as Defendant, exited and walked into the rear of 3417 Sharon Street. Approximately one (1) minute later, Defendant exited the residence, grabbed something white from inside the Mercury, handed the white object to another individual, and placed whatever was in his hand in the sun visor of the Mercury.

As the Mercury leaves the residence, Detective Corkle begins to follow it. He observed the vehicle make two (2) turns without signaling and radioed other officers to conduct a traffic stop. Detective Corkle followed the Mercury until Officer Cody Wilt (hereinafter “Officer Wilt”) was able to take over. Before Officer Wilt activated his emergency lights, Detective Corkle observed the Mercury suddenly pull over and the occupants jump out.

Officer Wilt stopped his vehicle and approached the occupants, who had walked about 40-50 yards away from the vehicle. Corporal Bloss and his K9 partner, JT, were on scene within two (2) to three (3) minutes of the initial contact with Defendant. Detective Corkle testified that Defendant was not free to leave after Officer Wilt approached him on the street. Additionally, Detective Corkle testified that Defendant was detained for traffic violations. However, it is unclear from the record what the exact sequence of events was.

Detective Corkle requested Corporal Bloss to run his K9 on the vehicle. The K9 conducted the sniff and alerted on the driver's side door of the vehicle. Based on the K9's alert, the police conducted a warrantless search of Defendant's vehicle. The search revealed $670 in the sun visor, several bags of a white powdery substance, a digital scale, and $1,300 in cash. At that time, Detective Corkle suspected that Defendant delivered cocaine to an individual at 3417 Sharon Street.

DISCUSSION

In Commonwealth v. Alexander, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania held that warrantless vehicle searches require both probable cause and exigent circumstances under Article 1, Section 8 of the Pennsylvania Constitution, overruling Commonwealth v. Gary, 91 A.3d 102 (Pa. 2014). Defendant argues that Alexander is retroactive, and therefore, applicable to his case as it is pending disposition. The Commonwealth argues that Alexander should not be held retroactive, and for this Court to apply the factors as set forth in In re L.J. to determine retroactive application.

In Pennsylvania, retroactive application of a new rule of law is a matter of judicial discretion, typically exercised on a case-by-case basis. In re L.J., 79 A.3d 1073, 1087 (Pa. 2013). Generally, "the decision announcing a new rule of law is applied retroactively so that a party whose case is pending on direct appeal is entitled to the benefit of the change." Id. The Supreme Court set forth the following factors to determine whether a court should deviate from the general rule of retroactive application of a new law: (1) the purpose of the new law; (2) the extent of reliance by courts and litigants upon the old rule, and (3) the effect the new rule of law will have on the fair administration of justice. Id. citing Kendrick v. Dist. Attorney of Phila. County, 916 A.2d 529, 536 (Pa. 2007).

However, when reviewing the applicable case law, it appears that the factors set forth in In re L.J. are based upon case law that has been abrogated or overturned. As noted above, the court in In re L.J. cited to Kendrick for the three (3) factors. The Kendrick Court cited to Commonwealth v. Miller, 417 A.2d 128, 136 (Pa. 1980); the Miller Court cited to a federal case, Stovall v. Denno, 388 U.S. 293, 297 (1967); the Stovall Court cited to a federal case, Johnson v. State of N.J., 384 U.S. 719, 727 (1966); and the Johnson Court cited to a federal case, Linkletter v. Walker, 381 U.S. 618, 636 (1965), which appears to be the origin of the three (3) factors – "In short, we must look to the purpose of the Mapp rule; the reliance placed upon the Wolf doctrine; and the effect on the administration of justice of a retrospective application of Mapp."

Linkletter, 381 U.S. at 636. It is important to note that the three (3) factors set forth in Linkletter were criticized by the Teague court:

The Linkletter retroactivity standard has not led to consistent results. Instead, it has been used to limit application of certain new rules to cases on direct review, other new rules only to the defendants in the cases announcing such rules, and still other new rules to cases in which trials have not yet commenced. ... Application of the Linkletter standard led to the disparate treatment of similarly situated defendants on direct review.

Teague v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288, 302-04 (1989).

In addition to the criticism espoused by the Teague court, both Johnson, 384 U.S. 719, and Stovall, 388 U.S. 293 were abrogated by U.S. v. Johnson, 457 U.S. 537 (1982), which held that “a decision of [the Supreme Court of the United States] construing the Fourth Amendment is to be applied retroactively to all convictions that were not yet final at the time the decision was rendered.” U.S. v. Johnson, 457 U.S. at 563. However, the Court recognized three (3) exceptions to the general rule: (1) when a decision applied settled precedents to new and different factual situations, the new rule should be applied retroactively; (2) where the new rule is a “clear break from the past”, it should be applied prospectively only; and (3) retroactive application to a ruling that a trial court lacked authority to convict or punish a defendant. Id. at 549-551.

Just a few short years later, U.S. v. Johnson was abrogated by Griffith v. Kentucky, 479 U.S. 314 (1987), which held that “a new rule for the conduct of criminal prosecutions is to be applied retroactively to all cases, state or federal, pending on direct review or not yet final, with no exception for cases in which the new rule constitutes a “clear break” from the past.” Griffith, 479 U.S. at 328 (emphasis added). Since Griffith has never been abrogated or overruled, it is the current law regarding retroactive application of a new rule of law.

We note that the Linkletter line of cases is specific to changes of federal law. The Alexander court announced a new rule of law under the state constitution. Therefore, we must determine the applicable law for retroactive application of a new rule of law under the Pennsylvania Constitution. In Commonwealth v. Cabeza, the court was tasked with determining whether the new rule announced in Commonwealth v. Scott, 436 A.2d 607 (Pa. 1981) should apply retroactively. Commonwealth v. Cabeza, 469 A.2d 146, 147 (Pa. 1983). The Scott court held that a prosecutor is prohibited from cross-examining character witnesses as to the mere arrests of the accused, and the cross-examination must pertain to arrests which relate to the character trait vouched for on direct. Scott, 436 A.2d at 611. The Cabeza court held that:

[W]here an appellate decision overrules prior law and announces a new principle, unless the decision specifically declares the ruling to be prospective only, the new rule is to be applied retroactively to cases where the issue in question is properly preserved at all stages of adjudication up to and including any direct appeal.

Cabeza, 469 A.2d at 148.

We find the holding of Cabeza to be controlling in this matter. Since the Alexander court did not specifically declare the ruling to be prospective only, the new rule announced in Alexander shall apply retroactively to all cases where the issue has been properly preserved. As this matter is currently pending disposition at the trial level, and Defendant has filed an omnibus pretrial motion raising Alexander, we find that the issue has been properly preserved. Therefore, Alexander applies retroactively in this case and we must determine whether the warrantless search of Defendant's vehicle was justified by probable cause and exigent circumstances.

The Commonwealth concedes that there were no exigent circumstances present in this case. Although this Court finds that suppression seems to be a severe remedy when police diligently follow previously established law, we are nevertheless constrained to find that the Commonwealth has failed to meet its burden to prove that the warrantless search of Defendant's vehicle was constitutional. Accordingly, all evidence obtained as a result of the warrantless search of Defendant's vehicle must be suppressed as the fruit of the poisonous tree.

Therefore, we enter the following Order:

ORDER

AND NOW, this 6th day of April, 2021, in accordance with the foregoing Memorandum Opinion, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendant's Omnibus Pretrial Motion to Suppress is GRANTED and all evidence obtained as a result of the warrantless search of Defendant's vehicle shall be SUPPRESSED.

The Judges have completed the APRIL 12, 2021 civil jury term. One civil case reached verdict and the summary is as follows:

CELESTE BROWN v. HEEDA HELEN SPEAKS (2016 CV 08493 CV)

Trial dates: April 12 – April 13, 2021

Trial Summary: On May 7, 2015, the Plaintiff, Celeste Brown, was involved in a motor vehicle accident at the intersection of Londonderry Street and Dartmouth Streets in Harrisburg. Plaintiff alleged that she stopped at the four way stop and that as she proceeded, Defendant Helen Speaks drove into the intersection without stopping and collided with her vehicle. Defendant asserted that Plaintiff's vehicle was second in line behind the vehicle to her left, and that after that vehicle proceeded, it was Defendant's turn to proceed from the stop. Defendant asserted that as she began to proceed, Plaintiff drove through the intersection out of turn, failed to yield to Defendant's vehicle, and struck the front of Defendant's vehicle.

No medical services or police were called to the scene. Plaintiff sought medical care on May 18, 2015, complaining of moderate right sided chest wall pain and moderate neck pain. On March 16, 2016, Plaintiff underwent an MRI of the lumbar spine which demonstrated degenerative changes. Defendant asserted that the diagnostic study did not differ significantly from a December 2013 study. Plaintiff was involved in a subsequent motor vehicle in October 2018, which she alleged aggravated existing degenerative conditions in her low back.

Plaintiff's expert, Lance Yarus, D.O., opined that the Plaintiff's injuries and complaints were directly related to the May 2015 accident, were permanent, and may require future treatment such as pain management.

Defendant's expert, Joshua Auerbach, M.D., opined that Plaintiff suffered no injuries causally related to the May 2015 accident and is not restricted in her work or daily activities of living related to that accident, nor does she require any treatment.

Verdict: The jury found no negligence on the part of Defendant and therefore did not reach the issue of whether Plaintiff proved serious injury as defined in the limited tort option under the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Financial Liability Law, 75 Pa.C.S. §1705(d).
